

Disclaimer

Please note that the information and materials provided at this website are for reference purposes only, and are not intended in any manner to constitute legal advice. Please consult a suitably qualified legal practitioner on any problem or matter. It is imperative that you do not act, or that you do abstain from acting, based upon the information and materials contained in or provided by or through this website without prior proper consultation with a qualified legal practitioner. Paul K.C. Chan & Partners gives no warranty and makes no representation as to the quality, accuracy or completeness of the information and materials at our website, and assumes no responsibility for information and materials contained in or provided by or through this website, and disclaims all liabilities in respect of such information and materials.

This website provides certain links to third party websites and/or refers to information and materials contained in or provided by or through such third party websites. Paul K.C. Chan & Partners is not responsible for and does not expressly or impliedly in any manner whatsoever endorse the contents of such third party websites, their quality, accuracy or completeness, and disclaims all liabilities in respect of the contents of such third party websites and of any other websites which may be accessible thereby or therefrom.

Email transmissions or telecommunications to Paul K.C. Chan & Partners or to any member of our firm through the email facilities provided by this website and/or receipt whereof by our firm do not create or constitute nor shall be deemed to create or constitute any solicitor-client and/or other relationship, and our firm does not guarantee the confidentiality of the contents of such email transmissions or telecommunications. Confidential information and communications should be imparted in person.